Maria Carmela Basile

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Maria Carmela Basile is the head of the Technology Transfer Office of the National Research Council of Italy, the largest research institution of the country and the fourth in Europe, covering all ranges of scientific, technological, and social sciences. As director of the TTO, she oversees and coordinates a staff of more than 20 people involved in the management and exploitation of patents and other IPRs, the generation of spinoff and startups, and the communication, dissemination, and promotion of research results.

She has a 15 years' experience in the management and coordination of technology transfer projects and in the implementation of strategic partnerships with both public and private entities to support research and innovation.

She is a member of several committees dealing with the evaluation of the research activities, support and financing of proof-of-concept projects, policy making and regulations on industrial property.

She also coordinates CNR's participation in many national and international projects for open innovation, technology transfer, business innovation and internationalization as well as training programs on technology transfer dedicated to both researchers and enterprises.

She has been a speaker at several national and international conferences and lecturer in Technology Transfer and Innovation courses at the post-graduation level.
